Outreach Access Technology & STEM – WSSB

For questions, troubleshooting, and in-person consults, Outreach AT is usually the first stop for teachers seeking technology support. This group of three AT professionals provides services statewide, and is ready to assist teachers and their students in navigating the complicated world of access technology.

Center for Assistive Technology Training – Northwest (CATT-NW)

The newly launched CATT-NW is affiliated with the American Printing House for the Blind (APH) and aims to provide technology acquisition resources, training, and support for APH technology products across the northwest region of the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii, and the Pacific territories. They are based at the Washington State School for the Blind. Using a train-the-trainer model, they plan to be frequent professional development providers at conferences and events.
